Thank you, Ria. I read over the review and noticed that your father had previously written a book called The Gray Book. When I checked his name in the file here at the Library of Congress, I found that the Library had 4 of your father's books--a 1969 ed. of The Gray Book, and 1970 ed. of the same, and then Nederlandse kerken en de joden, 1940-1945, and Intern beraad in verband met de relatie tussen kerk & Israel. I did take one of the Gray Books home with me last night and began reading it. Your father is an amazingly good researcher and writer. So far, I am very impressed with what I have read. I also picked up my copy of Hackett's I was a Stranger last night and read what he said about your father's work. Although I had read it before, I did not make the connection. Please tell your father that I have a high regard for his work.

Ken
